A clean energy transition plan for India

It also demonstrates a commitment to climate change mitigation by optimising resources with indigenous technology.

Energy security (warrants) the uninterrupted supply of energy at affordable prices. India faces the twin challenges of meeting the aspirations of its 1.3 billion population even as it safeguards its energy security and contributes to global efforts to mitigate climate change. Thanks to the Electricity Act of 2003, (A) / the installed coal-fired thermal power plant (TPP) generation (B) / capacity in India more than doubled (C) / ~~with~~ 94 GW to 192 GW between March 2011 and 2017. This sharp increase in the installed capacity has <sup>allowed / sanctioned</sup> enabled the government to increase per capita electricity consumption by 37% while reducing peak demand deficit from 9.8% (2010-11) to 1.6% (2016-17). However, India has a long way to go in providing electricity security to its people since its per capita electricity consumption is still only a third of the global average. ( $\frac{1}{3}$ )

Thermal plants are the core <sup>middle/center</sup>

Coal is the only fuel that India has in abundance and the geopolitics of India's neighborhood do not permit ready access to piped natural gas. TPPs contributed 71% of the 1,382 billion units (BU) of electricity generated by utilities in India during FY 2020-21 though they accounted for only 55% of the total installed generation capacity of 382 GW (as of March 2021). <sup>plenty</sup> ✓
